A TREASURE for All
Yours, Mine, Ours: A Community Resource with Global Reach

What a pleasure it is for me to write my first Annual Report letter for the Minneapolis Institute of Arts. Although my signature appears at the bottom, what follows on these pages represents the dedicated work of hundreds of people who help make the MIA such a treasure for all.

I am proud to report on our many recent accomplishments. In the past year, we have undertaken a range of beautiful, compelling exhibitions, we have acquired dozens of works for the collection, and we have implemented changes that will make us stronger as we pursue the museum’s mission of fostering a greater understanding and a more profound enjoyment of the visual arts.

We are eager to expand the impact of our work, and to engage an even larger audience. To spearhead this important effort, I am pleased to announce the recent appointment of Leann Standish, formerly at the Indianapolis Museum of Art, as the MIA’s Assistant Director for Institutional Advancement. Also, the museum has welcomed Jan-Lodewijk Grootaers as curator of African, Oceanic, and Native American Art.

The generosity that springs forth from donors inspires excellence at the MIA. Reflecting this enthusiastic support, we are proud to report that 24,500 individuals and families recognized the museum as a community priority through their gifts and memberships. During fiscal year 2007–08, the MIA benefited from $11.8 million in total gifts and pledges, $7.1 million of which is dedicated to support the museum’s daily operations, and another $4.7 million in contributions that are focused on the future, such as the museum’s endowment, capital projects, and the collection. Income from our permanent endowment continues to provide significant support for MIA operations, programs, and art acquisitions. In a year of turbulent financial markets, the museum’s endowment was valued at $179 million on June 30, 2008.

Community support sustains the MIA’s daily operations, making possible the full range of activities described on the following pages. For this and so much more, we thank all of you, the museum’s members, corporate sponsors, and foundation partners, who have generously supported the MIA during the fiscal year. We especially wish to acknowledge the citizens of Hennepin County through the Park Museum Fund; the Minnesota State Arts Board, supported by an appropriation by the Minnesota State Legislature and a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts; and the Institute for Museum and Library Services.

One of the year’s high points for me has been getting to know this amazing community and the enthusiastic, talented, and dedicated museum staff. In my first six months at the MIA, I’ve enjoyed invigorating discussions with staff, volunteers, and trustees about the museum’s mission, vision, and values. It has been a rewarding experience, and I have learned so much about this dynamic institution throughout the process. The outcome will be a new strategic plan for the museum—an efficient, flexible, and effective road map to success over the next few years, and one that takes greatest advantage of our recently enhanced building and expanding collection.

This is a fantastic time to become engaged with this institution, and I couldn’t be more thrilled to be a part of it.

Kaywin Feldman
Director and President

The MIA’s permanent collection is the heart and soul of the museum, informing our efforts to acquire, preserve, exhibit, and interpret great works of art for the benefit of all.

During the past year, a number of important works of art entered the permanent collection, either as purchases or gifts (a complete listing starts on page 38). What follows are a few highlights.

Reflecting our commitment to expanding the museum’s contemporary art holdings, we were happy to become a permanent home for Your Dog, by Yoshitomo Nara. An instant hit with visitors when it was lent to the museum, this engaging fiberglass sculpture was generously given to the MIA in 2007 by Dr. George T. Shea and Gordon Locksley.

New additions to the Department of Paintings and Modern Sculpture also include:

- The Clockmaker, shown at right, a magnificent cubist painting by Ivan Vasilievich Kliun, which reflects the influences of French Cubism and Italian Futurism.

- Kingston, a large-scale acrylic by Harvey Quaytman, which follows a compositional format that Quaytman used extensively in his early-70s work.

Fascinating new additions to the Department of Architecture, Design, Decorative Arts, Craft, and Sculpture include:

- A rare weathervane of a horse jumping through a hoop by A.L. Jewell & Company. (See page 39.)
- A magnificent table lamp, shown at right, which is an archetypal representation of the pure, elementary designs of the German Bauhaus.
- An untitled porcelain mural by Ruth Duckworth, a leading contemporary figure in ceramics and one of the twentieth century’s most innovative and important sculptors. (See page 38.)

The Department of Prints and Drawings acquired many beautiful works, such as:

- Two important drawings by American artist Jim Dine. (See page 44.)
- A pastel by the French artist Eva Gonzalès, shown far left.
- Several major color lithographs, two of which are by M. Denis and Joan Mitchell. (See page 45.)
- Significant etchings by Richard Serra.
The Department of Photographs purchased a number of outstanding photographs, including:

• Level ‘A’ Hazmat Suit, Yellow by Paul Shambroom of Minneapolis. (See page 44.)

Our holdings of Native American and Oceanic art have also grown, with acquisitions such as:

• Two sketchbooks, one of which is shown at right, created by Plains Indian prisoners at Ft. Marion, Florida, in the 1870s.

• A very rare Tlingit Fighting Dagger, a great addition to our Northwest Coast collection. (See page 38.)

Splendid Chinese objects entered the collection, many as gifts from Ruth and Bruce Dayton. These include:

• Towering Mountains and Fantastic Waterfalls, an exceptionally well-painted work by an important late Ming academic artist. (See page 40.)

• Rivers and Mountains in Late Spring, a fine addition to our growing collection of contemporary Chinese paintings. (See page 40.)

We’ve added several outstanding Japanese works of art, including:

• A dramatic vase by contemporary ceramist Sakiyama Takayuki inspired by the patterns created by waves in the sand. (See page 42.)

Finally, the Department of Textiles has been enriched by:

• A veil embroidered by a woman of the Mangal culture of east Afghanistan and west Pakistan. (See page 48.)

• A sari that, in 2002, received the highest award of excellence from the Indian central government.

ON A RELATED THREAD: In May, textiles curator Lotus Stack retired after 32 years at the museum. The department’s founding curator, Lotus drew on her scholarship, experience, and unquenchable enthusiasm to build a world-class textiles collection. She has been named an MIA curator emerita and continues her fruitful association with the museum.
A BEACON for Art Lovers and Learners
Exhibitions that Drew You and Thousands More

In 2007–08, we offered visitors a stimulating slate of exhibitions, ranging from major loan shows to highly focused installations from the permanent collection. In all, the museum’s curators mounted literally dozens of large and small exhibitions.

These included, in Target Gallery:

- “Georgia O’Keeffe: Circling Around Abstraction,” the first exhibition devoted to this American artist’s use of circular forms within her compositions.

In the U.S. Bank Gallery, we mounted several compelling smaller shows, such as:

- “The Prints of Sean Scully,” featuring editioned prints by this global artist best known for reviving abstract painting in the 1980s.

- “Alec Soth: Sleeping by the Mississippi,” spotlighting the museum’s recent acquisitions of large-scale prints from Soth’s publication of the same title.
We also installed a series of focused exhibitions to provide a richer context for individual works or groups of works in the permanent collection. The Cargill Gallery is ideally suited for such installations, including:

- “Pride on the Plains: Art of the Apsaalooka,” which focused on the museum’s holdings of Native American beadwork, our first exhibition to focus on the artistic achievement of a single tribe. (Shown above.)

- “Wind & Whimsy: Weathervanes and Whirligigs from Twin Cities Collections,” an unprecedented exhibition of a once familiar, now increasingly rare art form.

- “Calling a Bluff: Ter Brugghen’s The Gamblers,” documenting the painting’s yearlong conservation and restoration treatment at the Getty Conservation Center in Los Angeles.

In the Harrison Photography Gallery, years of original scholarship resulted in “Peter Henry Emerson and American Naturalistic Photography,” a groundbreaking exhibition of 90 photographs, accompanied by a catalogue, examining this underappreciated movement.

The Minnesota Artists Exhibition Program, led for 33 years by Stewart Turnquist, continues to mount stimulating artist-curated exhibitions of work by living Minnesota artists. Since July 2007, MAEP opened five such shows by local artists, including “Smoke and Mirrors: A Journey to Healing Knowledge,” featuring photographs by Vance Gellert (shown at left).

Each department has benefited from endowment support, purchase funds, and the extraordinary generosity of individual collectors. In the years to come, we’ll continue to build upon the masterpieces we are so fortunate to hold, making more great works of art publicly available for future generations.
A PASSION for Dedicated Supporters

Your Time, Talents, and Enthusiasm Enliven the Museum

Attendance from July 2007 through June 2008 numbered 495,952 visitors—up 6.5 percent from last year. Free general admission every day remains an extraordinary benefit, made possible by generous member, community, and corporate support.

Plus, our reach extends far beyond the museum’s doors, including the Purcell-Cutts House, Wells Fargo Center, and the five million visits made to the museum’s Web site. Our ability to reach audiences near and far through compelling exhibition information, award-winning interactive content, and dynamic tools for searches, ticketing, and purchases has never been better.

Membership remains strong, and we’re grateful for every member’s generous support. As of June 30, 2008, the museum had 24,537 member households, representing more than 40,000 individuals. Recent initiatives to attract new members have proved fruitful. Membership within the Director’s Circle, our highest-level support group, has far exceeded our expectations. Similarly, The Circle, created for arts enthusiasts ages 21 to 45, is flourishing. It now boasts 378 members, greatly exceeding our expectations.

Another successful effort to engage people of all ages is our Third Thursday evening event. Dedicated to celebrating the museum’s special exhibitions and collections, this free monthly event—featuring local musicians, films, curator-led tours, and more—attracted nearly 10,000 visitors last year. We also ushered in a new Third Thursday initiative called Member for a Day, which gives visitors a taste of all the great benefits of museum membership.
Educational Highlights

The MIA plays a vital role in the arts education of students statewide. As district budgets tighten, forcing schools to reprioritize their programs, we continue to deliver crucial arts experiences not offered by any other resource.

• Nearly 300 preschoolers took tours at the museum, reflecting our latest initiative to reach young learners.

• 74,688 K–12 students explored great works of art face-to-face at the museum, chaperoned by 5,483 parents.

• 95,710 students were served by the museum’s Art Adventure program within local schools, and nearly 3,182 teachers and Art Adventure volunteers received training.

What’s more, the MIA’s reach extends far beyond the region, thanks to our educational Web initiatives. ArtsConnectEd.org, produced in partnership with Walker Art Center, attracted 2.1 million visits last year. A free monthly online newsletter for teachers, Teaching the Arts, also gives instructors ideas for using art in the classroom.

We’re also proud of Art in the Park, our collaboration with the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board. During the reporting period, the free summer program attracted nearly 5,000 young people, who turned park buildings and grounds into lively art-making studios.

Page 12: Museum Guide Programs Director Sheila McGuire leads young visitors on an Artful Stories tour, a new initiative sponsored by the Friends of the Institute, designed for preschoolers.

Museum Connections

- More than 140,000 people discovered the MIA through tours led by highly trained volunteers or through self-guided tours.
- 3,200 students took part in youth classes.
- 5,810 adult visitors attended adult classes, symposia, lectures, and other museum events.
- 24,490 people participated in programs designed for families—especially Family Days, which remain among the museum’s most successful and well-attended programs.
- 182,000 visitors used 35 on-site Interactive Learning Stations and electronic directories to explore the galleries in greater depth.
- Enhanced Web treatments were created for four special exhibitions, including features such as curator-narrated slideshows and visitor feedback, which extended rich content to visitors.
- Thousands of e-mail subscribers learned about the collection and museum events via e-mail newsletters in six special-interest areas.

We couldn’t do what we do without our dedicated corps of volunteers. The museum’s tour guide programs—Collection in Focus, Art Adventure, and the Docent Program—train dedicated volunteers to illuminate the museum’s collections for visitors and classroom students alike. Our programs rely on the extraordinary gift of time and energy devoted by 365 dedicated Museum Guide Program volunteers, who contributed an astonishing 9,228 hours of service in 2007-08.

And, as always, the museum offered enticing opportunities for the community to connect with art. Family Days, classes, lectures, seminars, hands-on activities, performances, and other special events captivated audiences all year long.

Friends & Council Events Kudos

As ever, the museum has enjoyed tremendous support from the Friends of the Institute. The silver anniversary of its signature event, Art in Bloom, attracted a record-breaking 26,359 people and set a record for funds raised from this event. Art Perchance 2007 raised $92,000 for the transportation fund. Similarly, the 24th Annual Antiques Show and Sale raised more than $100,000 for the Decorative Arts Curatorial Council, and the 15th Annual Minneapolis Print and Drawing Fair raised nearly $46,000 for the Print and Drawing Curatorial Council.

These popular events raise significant amounts of money for acquisitions and special museum programs. We thank each and every volunteer, participant, and staff member who made such annual events a success.
The MIA is poised for great things. Museum finances are sound, both for daily operations and for the continued acquisition and preservation of significant works of art. The galleries are filled with visitors engaged in understanding the world’s cultural heritage. And our ability to expand the MIA’s educational impact among increasingly diverse audiences is stronger than ever.

In the coming year, the museum will welcome new curatorial talent with exceptional experience, credentials, and energy. We’ll put into action a new strategic plan to guide us in our efforts to enhance the MIA for everyone’s enjoyment. And we’ll announce the museum’s role in hosting the exhibition “The Louvre and the Masterpiece,” which will come to Minnesota in October 2009.

Furthermore, we will continue to:
• Build and steward the collection for the long-term benefit of the community.
• Develop an exciting calendar of exhibitions of all sizes, including major loan shows as well as smaller, focused presentations of the permanent collection.
• Enhance our offerings of dynamic programs and events that bring new insight to the MIA’s world-class collections and exhibitions.
• Refine our interpretive strategies, maximizing the quality and consistency of information provided to those who come to the museum or visit us online.
• Engage in new collaborations with Twin Cities organizations—including Walker Art Center and the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board—to foster a greater understanding and enjoyment of the visual arts.

We’ve got an exciting future, and we have you—our members, supporters, partners, volunteers, colleagues, and friends—to thank for it.
The following pages list the many extraordinary donors who inspire excellence at the Minneapolis Institute of Arts. We celebrate your gifts and eagerly recognize publicly the impact you’ve had, now and long into the future.

We recognize with gratitude the following members of the Director’s Circle, whose annual support represents the highest level of commitment to the MIA’s mission.
